What is LOCUS?

A program of Smart Growth America, LOCUS (Latin for “place”) is the preeminent national coalition of real estate developers and investors who advocate for sustainable, equitable, walkable development.

LOCUS brings together purpose-driven investors and partners to advocate for smart growth policy and outcomes at the federal, state, and local levels. LOCUS members also serve as Smart Growth America’s industry advisors on responsible development policy, informing SGA’s policy positions and partnership work with other coalitions of built environment leaders.

LOCUS enables smart growth development that strengthens community, prosperity, and environmental health by:

- Advocating for development and mobility policies that catalyze federal, state, and local change;
- Providing members with the resources and tools needed to drive change in development and mobility policies in their own communities,
- Building and engaging a diverse coalition, driven by the private sector, around issues of development and mobility.

“Americans are demanding vibrant, walkable urban places. Developers and investors recognize this demand and want to meet it, but too often public policy stands in the way.”

- Jair Lynch, LOCUS president

Join our network of LOCUS members and advance smart growth policy.

Why you should join LOCUS

Advocate for and influence policy:
Influence policymakers and SGA’s overall policy agenda, identifying opportunities for policy change to advance smart growth, TOD, and infill. Meet with elected leaders and federal policymakers through LOCUS convenings, members’ meetings, and outreach relevant to specific advocacy initiatives.

Learn from research and policy updates:
Receive the latest news and in-depth analysis of policy headlines relevant to real estate, learn from digital resources, gain access to expert advice, and develop professionally with LOCUS’ policy memos, webinars, virtual events, and monthly newsletters. LOCUS member meetings offer regular opportunities for learning and connection with federal leaders; guests in 2022 alone have represented HUD, the White House Council on Environmental Quality, the GSA and more.

Gain visibility and grow your business:
Meet and connect with fellow members, growing your network of smart growth developers and real estate development advocates from across the country. Share your work at our programmed members meetings, external conferences with invitations curated by LOCUS staff, or nominate projects for inclusion in our newsletter and national LOCUS events.

By the numbers

- Our members represent over 50 companies and organizations.
- LOCUS members’ firms are located in 25 states.
- Our Steering Committee members have delivered over 100,000 housing units to communities across the country, leading some of the nation’s most innovative mixed-income, mixed-use and transit-oriented projects.

Partner with us

Partnerships and collaborations drive LOCUS’ impact and influence in smart growth and triple-bottom-line real estate development. LOCUS welcomes values-aligned organizations to partner on technical assistance projects, industry-leading research, and networking opportunities such as LOCUS Link-Ups and Summits. Work with us on:

- Technical Assistance (TA): LOCUS TA offers local governments and community-based organizations insight into policies which can help deliver smart growth, market barriers to delivering affordable housing and mixed use development and more, with a special focus on strategies for infill and transit-oriented development (TOD).
- Research: LOCUS research highlights key industry trends and policy best practices, bringing together policy analyses with quantitative methodology and examples from industry leaders in the LOCUS membership.
- Events: LOCUS regularly hosts conferences, Hill Days and virtual events. LOCUS Link-Ups, hosted by local governments or others releasing RFPs, showcase new smart growth development or TOD opportunities.
